

The topic in December was “Entertainment in Ainsworth”. There were three drama societies in Ainsworth – each church had one. We saw photos of pantos performed by some of these groups and some of those present recognised names - and faces.

There was a description of Christmas in Ainsworth, especially carol singing and when the band played in the village. Steve showed us an article on James Sharrocks and an old photo of the Duke William. We looked again at some of the photos from the last meeting – especially one of Church Street with a close up of the pub sign on the row of club houses and the gap between the houses on the opposite side, now infilled.

There were also some new photos sent by David and by Margaret which we looked at towards the end of the meeting
