

David Earnshaw Photos.

(I will find a better way of uploading these to this page, but until then, I've done it this way, with the information in the index using David's descriptions).

Index

1. Mr. and Mrs. Horrobin & Rev. Bullock
2. The bridge was declared unsafe to carry the bus with passengers on so we had to get off and walk over the bridge followed by the bus. We then boarded the bus for the rest of the journey. Sorry, I cannot remember the year. (The bridge is at the junction of Ainsworth Road & Greenbank Road, Radcliffe).
3. The old Three Arrows pub & cottages.
4. Races
5. Class (No further info).
6. Class (No further info).
7. Class (No further info).
8. Mr. Jack Green of Old Barn Farm. (He took over from his father, Fred).
9. Post Office, far left and houses became the Co-op and now converted back to dwellings.
10. Newspaper cutting - This shop was on the corner of Knowsley Road at one time owned by my mother's aunt, Miss Mort.
11. No info.
12. Class. (Year unknown, but sure the teacher was Miss. Robson, who lived at Cherry Tree).
13. Wagon stuck whilst filling in the Delph.
14. Filling in the Delph
15. Races - overhead view of the crowds.
16. Arriving at the races.
17. Races.
18. Races.
19. Races.
20. Races
21. Ainsworth Holcome hunt races.
22. Class - Miss. Robson.

1911. Church Street decorated for the Coronation of King George V.

DAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1880.

Sales by Auction.

To Confectioners and others.

Mr. THOS. TEAL, junior, has received instructions from Mr. Amos Brooks, who is declining the wholesale confectionery business, to Sell by Auction, on Wednesday, the 3rd day of March, 1880, at his premises, opposite the Church, Cockeysmoor, Ainsworth,

THE whole of his PLANT and TRADE EFFECTS, together with a quantity of surplus furniture, horse, confectioner's shandry, spring cart, and other effects.

Image © Reach PLC. Image created courtesy of THE BRITISH LIBRARY BOARD.

dress on the occasion.

NEW CHURCH CONSECRATED.—On Saturday last, the 30th ult., the Lord Bishop of Chester, after holding a confirmation at Radcliffe Church, proceeded to the consecration of the new church lately erected in Ainsworth, near Cockey-moor. The prayers were read by the Incumbent, the Rev. J. Houghton, M.A., after which an impressive discourse was delivered by the Rev. the Chancellor of the Diocese. The church is a neat stone building, with a handsome tower, and was consecrated by the name of Christ Church, Ainsworth.

